Feminist Studies in Religion Take Root

Many forms of feminist work in religion are useful in making social and spiritual change.

Religious feminists are finding many ways in the current political situation to bring our insights to bear. Decades of scholarship, collaboration, and creativity prepare us to be useful. Our commitment to intersectional, interreligious, international work is relevant to the world's needs. New challenges include how to broaden our base and, especially, how to work with children to teach feminist religious values of love and justice, equality and mutuality as early as possible.

This presentation can be adjusted to any length needed.

Mary E. Hunt, Ph.D., is a feminist theologian who is cofounder and codirector of the Women's Alliance for Theology, Ethics, and Ritual (WATER) in Silver Spring, Maryland, USA. A Catholic active in the women-church movement and on LGBTIQ matters, she lectures and writes on theology and ethics with particular attention to liberation issues. She is an editor of A Guide for Women in Religion: Making Your Way from A to Z (Palgrave, 2004) and coeditor with Diann L. Neu of New Feminist Christianity: Many Voices, Many Views (SkyLight Paths, 2010). Her writings can be found in the National Catholic Reporter, on the website Religion Dispatches, and other outlets.
